Hebrew Prayer.

The following prayer was offered at Zanesville, Ohio, by Rev. W. J. Brill, of the Hebrew Hungarian Benevolent Society, for the recovery of President Garfield:

We pray and entreat mercy from the presence of the God of Heaven, King of mercy; in the spirit of the law in which the thirteen attributes of mercy are manifested, as recorded, Exodus XXXIV., heal the President of the United States of America, James A. Garfield, O Eternal, and he shall be healed; save him, and he shall be saved; for Thou art our praise.

O God the King, Who sittest on the throne of mercy, Who created the world with the attributes of mercy, and who appertaineth benignity and mercy. Who governeth His creatures with the attributes of mercy; Who redeemeth and delivereth; Whose wonderful mercies are directed to benefit His creatures; Who is near to those who fear Him; Who answereth in times of distress those who call upon Him; May Thee be filled with the tender mercy towards us and all His people; and among them may He in particular remember, visit, pity, compassionate, deliver, shield, save, protect, favor, heal and relieve the President of the United States of America, James A. Garfield, who now languishes in trouble and affliction, lying on the bed of sickness; and we entreat the eternal, His God, to grant him charity, grace, favor, mercy, health, cure, peace and life. May the supreme king of kings, through His infinite mercy, compassionate him, distill the balsam of Gilead in his wounds, alleviate his pains, and accomplish in him the sentence which is written: "For the Eternal thy God He is a merciful God; He will not forsake thee nor destroy thee; neither will He forget the covenant of our fathers which He swore unto them. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Eternal pitieth them that fear Him. The Eternal is merciful and gracious, slow in anger, and abundant in mercy."

May the supreme King of Kings, through His infinite mercy, answer him as it is written, Psalm XX. Amen.

Drowning a Chinese Widow.

On the evening of the 30th of June, while the steamer of Peking was lying alongside the bulk at Hankow, the officers witnessed an attempt to drown a woman from a Sunpan, close to the landing steps, on the part of two men, one of whom was seen to push her into the water. Mr. Morgan, of the Custom Service, who saw the occurrence from the shore, ran down the steps and rescued the woman, the water there being only about six feet deep. When he pulled her out of the water it was found that her hands were tied behind her, and that a large stone was fastened around her neck. She said to her rescuer: "Maskee, more better I die!" When she recovered from the effects of her bath she went home. At 4:30 a. m. the next day she was "successfully" drowned by her two brothers-in-law, the men whose attempt had been frustrated on the previous day. They took her out this time in the middle of the river, and having attached a line to her waist as well as pinioned her arms and fixed a stone around her neck, they pushed her into the water as before. After life was extinct they pulled the body up by the line around the waist, took it ashore and buried it with the usual funeral rites. The crime of the deceased was stated to be that "she refused to marry an old man; she, being a fine blooming widow, wanting something better." The details of the actual murder were given to Mr. Morgan by some Chinese who witnessed both events, and the murders themselves told him that it would have been better if he had not interfered with their first attempt.

Strange Fulfillment of a dream.

Recently an aged German, living on Market street, left his vest in the store of his employer for a short time. When he returned he found that two watches, one of gold and one of silver, had been stolen from the vest. The old man a night or two ago, dreamed he saw the watches covered with straw in a corner of the yard adjoining the house where he slept. The next morning he told his dream and was laughed at by all the household, except the women head of the family. She advised him to go and look over the place designated in his dream. He did so, and in a few minutes his cries of joy brought forth all the household. He had, by poking in the straw in the spot designated, found one watch, and was almost overcome. A few minutes further search brought to light the other watch and the chains. Now the old man rejoices, and he is a firm believer in dreams.—Hartford Times.

A Deadwood man saw another reach for his hip-pocket, thought the fellow meant to draw a revolver on him, and shot him dead. Then he found that the man was about to draw a flask to treat him, and he much regretted his hasty act. But he remarked that the last wishes of the deceased should be carried out, and took a drink from the flask. Such a touching example of respect for the last wishes of the dead is seldom seen.—Boston Post.

Water is so scarce along the B. & O. road between Bellaire and Newark that the company is hauling water to the stations in tanks built upon flat cars.

The Council of Ten.

The famous Council of Ten has long been the subject of the gravest historical discussion, and, as some writers suggest, its true history is probably unwritten. The view generally adopted is that here given. The Council of Ten was established about the middle of the fourteenth century, at a time when Venice was greatly disturbed. After a while there were selected from the Ten three inquisitors, in whom all the powers of the State were vested, and who formed a Court whose proceedings have been so often called in question by historians. Their rigid despotism, says one writer, had the effect of giving a stern unity of purpose to the proceedings of Government, and doubtless contributed in some degree to consolidate the various accessions of territory which had been made into one whole. The Council is said to have been, at first, at least, more terrible to the nobility than to the commoners, doubtless from the fact that the conspiracies which were then frequent were creations of that class, and the best authorities generally hold the opinion that the Ten preserved the external dignity and independence of the Republic better than their predecessors. A notable fact is that the height of the prosperity of Venice was reached about that time, and when their despotism passed away, with it departed the greatness of the city of the waters.

Republican Endorsements.

John Wesley Bookwalter, Democratic nominee, has received such endorsements from honest, reputable, influential Republicans that his own party has no need to sound his praise.

Warren Andrews, the founder of the Xenia, O., Torchlight, a well known Republican organ, now publisher of the Yellow Springs Review, and a Republican high in the ranks of his party, in a late article paid many handsome compliments to Mr. Bookwalter, the most admirable being that all Republicans and Democrats alike, knew Mr. Bookwalter to be a man and gentleman, one who would make an able and honorable Governor.

Wm. R. Calhoun, editor of the Olive Branch, a commercial paper in Springfield, an ex-chairman of the Clark county Republican Central Committee, one of the most brilliant and successful organizers in the party, recently said in his paper that Mr. Bookwalter's honor was as unassailable as Gibraltar, that he was a man of splendid intelligence and ripe experience, and would finely grace the gubernatorial chair.

Judge James Goode, of Springfield, O., one of the common Pleas Bench, one of the purest and ablest men in the Republican party, of Ohio, said that from long and intimate business relations with Mr. Bookwalter he knew him to be absolutely incorruptible and a man of marked ability.

Mayor F. E. D. McGinley, of La Fayette, Ind., editor of an independent Republican paper, eloquently pronounced John Wesley Bookwalter one of the purest and best men in the United States, and one who had few equals as a scholar and thinker.

A Sure Cure For Hog Cholera.

The Lewistown (Ill.) Gazette contains the following: "Every paper in the United States ought occasionally to keep the fact before its readers that burned corn is a certain and speedy cure for hog cholera. The best way is to make a pile of corn on the cobs, effectively scorch it, and then give the affected hogs free access to it. This remedy was discovered by E. E. Lock, at the time his distillery was burned in this county, together with a large lot of store corn which was so much injured as to be unfit for use, and greedily eaten by the hogs, several of which were dying daily. After the second day not a single hog was lost, and the disease entirely disappeared. The remedy has been tried in a number of cases since and has never failed."

They Should Not Cheapen Wages.

The penitentiary convicts should be put at such labor as would not cheapen the wages of the workmen of Ohio. They should be put at such labor as would not make the contractors millionaires from competition with workmen of the State, with convict labor furnished by the State. If competition with such labor is necessary, let the State profit by it; but such competition is wholly unnecessary, as productive labor of a kind which would not compete with Ohio labor can be furnished by the State to all convicts.

Bookwalter Digs Coal.

Mr. Bookwalter went down the Market street coal shafts this morning, and while conversing with the miners about a business with which he seemed quite familiar, one of the miners came out from where he was "bearing in" and handing the next Governor his pick asked him to try his hand at coal digging. Mr. Bookwalter took the pick and went to work, and soon showed the miner that he could dig coal with the best of them. After showing his skill in handling a pick he returned it to the miner. The miner laid away a piece of the coal dug by Mr. Bookwalter, saying that if he should be elected, he would exhibit it as the first piece of coal ever dug by a Governor of Ohio.—Steubenville Gazette.

It is not safe to argue that a revival of business is at hand just because your wife has succeeded in disposing of your second best suit of clothes in exchange for a great plaster of paris parrot with a tomato colored beak.

It Is Coming.

In every campaign, when the Republican party sees defeat staring them in the face, they ever abandoned principle, platform and party prestige and raise a hellbellow over some issue entirely irrelevant to the campaign, false and foolish to its purpose. The bloody shirt, the school question, the church question, and last but not least, the business and tariff questions were successful shibboleths with them.

The Republicans are now casting about for some new howl. They have decided that their only hope is a general and bitter personal onslaught on John Wesley Bookwalter. In order to give them plenty of ammunition, we felt it our duty to make the following admissions concerning Mr. Bookwalter.

JOHN WESLEY BOOKWALTER
Was born under a fatal star.

From early infancy he manifested evil inclinations.

When a mere boy he was the terror of the neighborhood because of his propensity to kill chickens, birds, dogs, cats, etc.

When a youth, he was looked upon as an outlaw, and was suspected of all the crimes perpetrated in his section of the country.

As he grew up he became more wicked. He refused to go to church oftener than twice a day, and almost manifested a desire to go a-fishing on Sunday.

At last his evil nature tended toward business. Here all the malignity of his disposition revealed itself, and valuable manufactories and broad acres flourished under his hand. All that he touched prospered.

Then he became restless and visited all the countries of the world with his evil presence.

He burned the midnight oil for years, and dire and devilish are the things whispered about his solitary studies late into the night.

Finally, this hydra-headed monster, this bold, bad, wicked man, threw off all restraint, cast aside all his pretended decency and good behavior, and accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor of Ohio. Whatever may have been of good in his life or heart was utterly banished when he accepted this nomination. For this stupendous crime of the nineteenth century he deserves the anathemas of the people of Ohio.

"Jentlemanly Ladies."

In a railroad car the seats were all full except one, which was occupied by a pleasant looking Irishman, and at one of the station a couple of evidently well-bred and intelligent young ladies came in to procure seats. Seeing no vacant, they were about to go into the next car, when Patrick arose hastily and offered them his seat with evident pleasure.

"But you will have no seat for 'yourself,'" responded one of the young ladies, with a smile, hesitating with true politeness, to accept it.

"Never mind that," said the gallant Irishman; "I'd ride upon a cow-catcher to New York any time for a smile from such jentlemanly ladies!"

And he retired hastily into the next car amid the cheers of his fellow-passengers.

The following rules to test good flour are given by an old dealer: First look at its color. If it is white, with a slightly yellow or straw-colored tint, it is a good sign. If it is very white, with bluish cast or with small black specks in it, the flour is not good. Second, examine its adhesiveness. Wet and knead a little of it between the fingers; if it works dry and elastic it is good; if it works soft and sticky it is poor. Flour made from spring wheat is often sticky. Third, throw a little lump of dry flour against a dry, smooth, perpendicular surface; if it adheres in a lump, the flour has life in it; if it falls like powder, it is bad. Fourth, squeeze some of the flour in your hand; if it retains the shape given by the pressure, that, too, is a good sign. It is safe to buy flour that will stand all these tests, and they are simple.

The widow of Ouray, the celebrated Ute chief, who died last winter, sold her household effects at auction the other day, and the published accounts of the sale in local papers show that the Colorado Indians must live in luxury. The Solid Muldoon says: "The articles offered were knocked down at ruinous prices. The four Russia leather arm-chairs sold for 75 cents; $75 dressing-case, $13; Ouray's fine broad cloth suit (never worn) $5; forty yards of velvet Brussels, worth $100, for $13, and Ouray and Chipeta's certificates of membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church, 25 cents."

Ex Senator Dorsey is mentioned by the New Orleans Times as the owner of the best appointed cattle-ranch on the continent. It occupies half a million acres of well-watered grazing ground in New Mexico. A railroad station near the ranch is named "Dorsey." He is supposed to have paid for all this out of Star-route stealings, and may yet have cause to ask himself, what shall it profit a man to own a big ranch if he goes to the penitentiary?

A strange religious order called "The Underground Sect" is found in the District of Savatlov, Russia. The members drill in caves and other subterranean places, live on bread and water, bury their dead at night, and tolerate no union of sexes.

It is reported from Washington that Brady, ex-Second-Assistant Postmaster-General, went to Canada several days ago. Gone to meet Howgate.

Experience the Best Guide.

The constant practice most women have in caring for the sick makes them often more skillful than physicians in selecting medicines. The reason why women are everywhere using and recommending Parker's Ginger Tonic is, because they have learned that the best of guides—experience—that this excellent family medicine speedily overcomes despondency, periodical headache, indigestion, liver complaints, pain or weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles peculiar to the sex.—Home Journal, Sep. 21-1mo

When President Garfield was shot down by a Republican politician who hunted office at the mouth of the revolver, every Democrat forgot his politics in denouncing the causeless and infamous crime. It remained for a Republican committee in the city of Columbus to concoct and publish a circular charging this crime upon the Democratic leaders and voters of the country. The hour has come to put down the gang of politicians who would put such a lie in circulation when the President lies at death's door, while 50,000,000 people, without regard to politics, are in a constant state of apprehension as to his recovery.—Columbus Times.

Congressman J. Hyatt Smith, of Brooklyn, has withdrawn from his congregation for the reason that he cannot perform the duties of both Congressman and Pastor. There is a chance for somebody to say something right here about God and Mammon.

An Irish lady was so much on her guard against betraying her national accent that she is reported to have spoken of the "creature of Vesuvius," fearing that the crater would betray her again.

The good people of Texas say that most of the criminals in their penitentiaries are young men from the northeast and west, who have wandered south, and freed from the restraints of home influences have fallen into bad ways. It is just probable the Texans are right.
